The Tokyo Olympics featured an unexpected guest on television. The footage did not highlight an athlete's moment of glory during the medal ceremony or heartwarming teamwork. Instead, it focused on a six-legged runner.

The new star of the games was actually a cockroach! Viewers from across the globe got an unusual shock during the concluding minutes of a women's field hockey match between Argentina and Spain. A cameraman decided to amuse himself by drawing attention away from the live sports coverage to close-up images of the the Argentinian team's spirit as they went on to win 3-0. The cameraman's unconventional choice of camerawork left many sports fans baffled. The video was
(17)

CLAY SCULPTURES FOR BEGINNERS!

Welcome to the world of clay sculpting! Shape your imagination and unleash your creativity.

Here are some tips to help you pick the right clay and improve your technique.

What type of clay should you use?

There are several types of clay used for sculptures, depending on how you can handle them and the type of finished product you would like to have.

1. Oil-based modelling clay
  - appears rough and does not dry out like water-based clay
  - tricky to work with as it requires heat to soften and mold
2. Polymer-based modelling clay
  - soft and does not dry out, making it easy to mold
  - baking is needed and a slight smell will emit during the process
3. 'Firing' clay
  - water-based clay
  - easy to sculpt with this clay to create different shapes and designs
4. Walter E. Disney clay
  - water-based clay
  - used by entertainment professionals

Using water-based clay is the best for beginners to practise sculpting techniques at home. It is by far the easiest to use to create shapes using simple tools and it can be cleaned up easily with soap and water.

You can create your own sculpture in the comfort of your home too!

Set up an organised workspace by doing the following:

1. Adjust your chair and table to a suitable height to prevent hunching. Set them up near a window so that you can see the fine clay details under natural light.
2. Protect your work area with aluminum foil as clay may stain the surfaces of furniture.
3. Store tools within reach or add shelving above your table so you can grab them with ease.

How to start sculpting?

Follow the five useful tips below to make clay sculptures.

1. Visualise the final piece

Before you start, sketch several designs of how you imagine the final product to look like from various angles.

2. Test clay for wetness

Pull off a small piece of the clay and roll it in your hand until it forms a cylindrical shape. If it is flexible, it is usable. If it cracks, try adding more water.

4. Experiment and Practise

Get a feel for how different tools affect the material. Practise by cutting, poking and dragging the tools across a sheet of clay. Experiment ways of building up clay, connecting pieces and adding details.

3. Shape your clay

Coiling the clay is a good way of building up the sides of a hollow shape. This prevents the shaped clay from collapsing.

5. Have fun

All sculptors improve and grow by learning from their mistakes. Working with clay is supposed to be a relaxing and fun experience that inspires you and awakens your imagination. Do not be afraid to try even if you do not have any experience.

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 71 to 80 is on the next page. You may now go on to Booklet B.

(Go on to Booklet B)

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B.

After a challenging jungle trek in West Africa, we arrived at a small cave which was known for snake sightings. Our crew was led by a local ranger, Zari, and two snake handlers. My reptile-loving companion and avid wildlife photographer, Bob, had formed a unique bond with Zari, who had shared some interesting findings about pythons. They had promised us an adventure of a lifetime in seeking out a wild python in a cave. Without second thoughts, we hurriedly headed for the cave. 5

"Snake's inside. They spotted it this morning," said Zari, pointing to the snake handlers. Bob clapped his hands in delight, much to everyone's amusement. He was the first to volunteer to lead the way. Both of us got down on our stomachs and squeezed our way into the cave, trying to spot the python. Surrounded by darkness, my initial excitement turned to regret. With hardly any room to move, the inevitable danger of encountering a menacing python made my heart race. Bob directed his torch beam down the narrow passage to reveal a massive python, coiled up tight, just two metres ahead. I felt a surge of cowardice wash over me as ferocious hisses echoed. We crawled out quickly into the sunlight again and sat up. 10 15

Moments later, Bob was squealing with joy as he experimented with his camera. I was about to suggest consulting the locals for help when Bob spotted one of the handlers making a noose out of thick rope. "We need to get that around its neck, then pull and drag it out!" suggested Bob as he impatiently pulled me up. I doubted it could work but kept it to myself. I fought to compose myself as I watched Bob behave like an eager child. As Bob skipped around playfully, I clenched my jaw, resisting the urge to yell. 20

More doubts started to creep in as I assessed the risks. I warned Bob about the dangers of getting entangled with the python within the cramped cave. Determined to prioritise our safety, I insisted that Bob and I wear thick, layered clothing to shield ourselves from potentially getting bitten. Despite these precautions, a nagging sense of worry lingered. Concerned about our well-being, I emphasised the python's strength and unpredictable nature, stating, "Do you really think you'll get a chance to noose it?" 25

Immediately, one of the snake handlers produced an extendable pole with a grabber tool at one end while the other tested the resistance of the knot. 30

"This will work. We've got to try, right?" Bob asked. He patted my shoulder, adding, "Don't worry, I understand how snakes react. This knowledge will come in handy for sure!" 35

I sighed in resignation as I knew Bob was not going to give up the prospect of photographing and getting close to the snake. Zari gave us some instructions on how to assist in capturing the snake. Suddenly, the air buzzed with anticipation. 40

Bob and I crawled into the cave together, wedged shoulder to shoulder. While I shone the torch down the tunnel, Bob slowly inched the pole over the top coil of the python and then yanked with all his strength. To our amazement, the entire bulk of the snake slid down the cave towards us without resistance! My mind grappled with confusion as I had anticipated a fierce struggle as Bob shuffled backwards and pulled. I watched in awe as Bob skilfully manoeuvred the noose over its head in the tight confines of the cave. Soon, the snake hissed madly as it tried to free itself. 45

"Quick! Pull the rope!" I roared as Bob appeared at the cave mouth. As he stepped back to drag the snake out, he slipped on a loose rock. The pole slipped from his grasp as he tumbled backwards. Within seconds, the python slithered back into the cave, leaving us speechless! 50

Talk about making lemonade when life gives you lemons. Eagle-eyed shoppers at IKEA Singapore spotted misprinted cloth bags _____ sale at its online store, as well as its physical store at Alexandra Road. (29)

IKEA Singapore had misspelt its website address, printing "www.ikea.co.sg" on its cloth bag. Rather _____ disposing of the misprinted bags, IKEA decided to own _____ to its mistake and proceeded with selling the cloth bags at its retail outlets. (30) (31)

The furniture retailer came clean about _____ error through an explanation on the tag in addition to the words "These bags _____ limited edition and they will not be back!". Similarly, at IKEA's online store, the misprinted bags are _____ being sold, with the explanation given. (32) (33)

A photo posted _____ Facebook user Alicia Cho showed the bags on sale at the physical store. The bag had become popular _____ many young shoppers. This was largely due _____ the fact that the bag was sold at only $1.90. (34) (35) (36) (37)

IKEA explained that it did not scrap the products. _____, IKEA hoped that customers can give a perfectly new bag "a second chance" and consider it for its eco-friendly reusable function. This move is in line with IKEA's motto to care for the planet and use resources carefully. (38)

My grandmother was famous in her little town for the baked goods which she (39)
 sold. That was a small bissness which her mother had left her. I loved visiting her (40)
 shop as there was always something intresting to look forward to.

(41)
 During one visit, she was making one of my favourite snack - chocolate cookies.
 (42)  (43)
 I was exilerated and kept sneaking into her kitchen, hoping to steal a bite on the delicious cookies as soon as they were out of the oven.

Although Grandmother kept chasing me out of the kitchen, I successfully (44)
 managed to sneak in to steal one and bite into it. Much to my suprize, it was not what (45)
 I had expected. It was a brown coaster that looks just like a cookie! When Grandmother saw it, she fell into a fit of laughter as she found it bizzare for me to chew on a coaster.
 (46)
 (47)
 However, back then, I did not find it humour.

(48)
 Years later, Grandmother passed over. We went to her house to go through her
 (49)  (50)
 belongings. I had all and forgotten the coaster incident until I found, in one paticuler box, the same coaster with a perfect little bite. Tears began to well up in my eyes.
