Synchronous Fireflies, which blink together, are just one of nineteen species of fireflies that are native to the Smoky Mountains in North America and they have become a major attraction. Every year, the National Park Service hosts an eight-day event at the peak of firefly season, which typically lasts about two weeks. The festival has become so sought after that the park has a system that awards tickets randomly to visitors who apply at its website. Last year, the event was scrapped due to the pandemic and plans for this year have not been announced yet.

Section C: Comprehension (Open-ended) (10 marks)

Read this passage and answer questions 21 to 25.

On Tuesday night, Jasmine found her list of things to do, which was supposed to be under her pillow, pinned to her pyjamas. The first thing on the list was for her to do her homework. However, she did not have time for that. She needed to prepare for the trip that their parents had planned for that weekend instead. That list was prepared by Clyde, her elder brother.	5
After she had packed all the items on the list, Jasmine took a big glass of water from the bathroom and sat on the edge of her bed. Being frustrated with Clyde, she bit off a large corner of the list. The paper was tasteless and quite hard to chew on. Since the ink was not waterproof, it turned her teeth blue. She bit the paper again. After which, she tore up the note, crumpled the pieces and threw them into the trash. She quickly grew tired and fell asleep.	10
The next morning, Clyde and Jasmine boarded the school bus as usual. They sat together at the back of the bus. When the bus arrived at school, everyone got off the bus, except for Jasmine. She remembered her incomplete homework and dreaded the thought of being reprimanded by her teacher, Mrs Geller.	15
"I'm sure she would understand. It wasn't my fault. I had to pack for the trip alone, without Clyde's help," Jasmine was absorbed in her thoughts.
Mr Patterson did not bother checking if there were any students left on the bus. He drove the bus to the parking lots, where the rest of the school buses were parked. He then got off the bus and walked towards the school building.	20
Clyde walked through the main entrance and realised that his sister was nowhere in sight.
"Where's Jasmine? Did she get off the bus?" he thought. Clyde turned around and decided to trace his steps to find his missing sister. When he arrived at the spot where the bus dropped them off, the bus was no longer there. He then made a sprint for the parking lots, hoping that the bus would be there.	25
"Help me, I'm trapped on the bus!" yelled Jasmine, who was frantically knocking on the windows. Clyde quickly pressed the emergency door release button and out stepped Jasmine, with beads of perspiration dotting her head.
"Clyde, I'm not looking forward to going to class, and it's your fault. I didn't do my homework last night because you didn't help me pack for our trip," Jasmine muttered.	30
"What do you mean? Didn't you have time to do it after packing? I think you should own up to Mrs Geller and take responsibility for your own actions," Clyde advised.
Heeding her brother's advice, Jasmine went to class and confessed.
"Mrs Geller, I'm sorry that I didn't do my homework," said Jasmine.	35
"Isn't that assignment due tomorrow?" Mrs Geller said and gave Jasmine an incredulous look. Jasmine stood there with her mouth agape. She blushed as a wave of realisation swept over her. She could not believe the events of that morning.
