TRAVELLING EYE CARE CARNIVAL BACK AT SERANGOON COMMUNITY CLUB!

Sunday, 24 October 2021

Venue: Serangoon North Community Club

Take good care of our eyes!

The biannual event hopes to educate residents in Serangoon about the importance of eye health. Launched in March 2021, the carnival is back for the second time. There was positive feedback from the residents, especially the elderly who benefited from the free eye-checks.

Highlights of the Carnival

- Bouncy castle for children aged 12 and below
- More than 20 interactive game stalls for all ages
- Lucky Draw – win attractive prizes!

Purchase your coupons from the Sales Office in the Community Club from 1 September to 24 October 2021. Coupons are sold at $5 per booklet. All coupon booklets come with a free reusable bag and discount vouchers worth $50 from our sponsors.

Talk for Parents

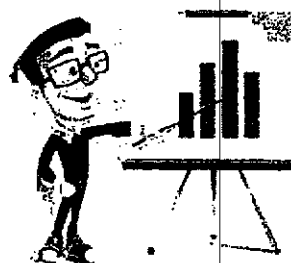

At this event, parents with young children can attend a talk on 'Childhood Myopia' and inculcate good eye care habits in their children.

Review

"Dr Tan is engaging. I learnt useful tips on what parents should do as poor eyesight in children is difficult to detect. My children have perfect eyesight and they take regular eye breaks when they use the computer. In my opinion, eye conditions can be corrected."

Mrs Cheryl Lee, mother of 3, who attended the talk

Presenter: Dr Tan Wei Ming

Time: 10am to 11am

Venue: Indoor Sports Hall

Sign up for the talk at www.eyecare.com at $10 per person. Limited to 100 seats. All funds collected will go to the Eye Research Institute to raise awareness of eye diseases.

Recycle for Sight Project (RSP)

Do you have spectacles which you do not use? Please donate to the RSP organised by Eye Aid Optics. In 2020, we donated hundreds of pairs of spectacles to needy families in Singapore. We only accept spectacles that are in usable condition - no broken frames or missing lenses.

Be a volunteer to help collect the spectacles. Call Ms Lily at 61234567 if you have any queries about this project.

Collection Venue: Hibiscus Room

Eye-screening for Residents aged 55 and above

Ophthalmologist: Dr Vincent Ho
Venue: Orchid Room
Time: 9am to 1pm

Ophthalmologist: Dr Lynn Samat
Venue: Rose Room
Time: 11am to 3pm

Ophthalmologist: Dr Kumar Govin
Venue: Periwinkle Room
Time: 2pm to 6pm

Free for eligible residents. Latecomers will not be admitted. Online bookings can be made from 1 September 2021 with any of the ophthalmologists. Collect your tickets at the reception counter on Level One on the day of the screening.

Dine-in-the-Dark Experience

How is it like to dine in the dark? Before the experience, all mobile devices must be handed over to the volunteers. Have a meal in a pitch-black setting with the visually-impaired. Your senses of touch, taste, smell and hearing will be intensified. After the meal, the venue will be lit up. The volunteer will present you with pictures and descriptions of what you have eaten. You can compare with your impressions and find out how many of your guesses were correct.

Venue: Tulip Room

- For enquiries about the Dine-in-the-Dark Experience, please email Mr Simon Loh at simonloh@dine.sg.
- To register for the experience, please call 67654321.

What do you think researchers have discovered in the Amazon? You will often think of rare birds, plants _____ different insect species. Although these can be discovered there, _____ of the most unusual languages in the world exist in the Amazon too.

Everett, a researcher from America, knows a lot _____ these languages. One day, Everett, together with a friend, _____ swimming in the river when a woman from a tribe threw part of a monkey carcass into the water near them. When the water began frothing, the men realised _____ they were actually sharing the river with the piranhas – a type of sharp-toothed, predatory fish. Everett also later found _____ that the river was filled with crocodiles too!

Everett learnt his lesson to be cautious before going for a swim and he also started to learn the language of the different tribes. It was an uphill task because none of the tribesmen _____ speak English. Everett plunged into the language _____ first learning the basics. He pointed at objects until a tribesman named them for him. Then, Everett repeated the sounds the speaker had made until he got the pronunciation correct. Finally, he would confirm each new word he had learnt with _____ in the tribe. _____ the tribe never considered him to be a true speaker of the language. To them, he was more like a very clever talking parrot who sounded like a real person.

Each of the underlined words contains either a spelling or grammatical error. Write the correct word in each of the boxes. (12 marks)

Exercise might seem like a chore to many. However, health experts have emphasised that it is krutial to get up and move about regularly.

(39)

(40)

Many people often spend a lot of time sitting and stare at their computer screens.

(41)

In fact, most adolescents those days do not meet the standards for the ideal amount of neccessary physical activity. During puberty, the brain develops dramatically. Sadly, the number of physical activities tends to decline since the children become adolescents. Unlike younger children, most adolescents lead more serdanteri lives.

(42)

(43)

(44)

(45)

One reason is because many of them spends more time in front of computer screens.

This is rather unfortunate because exercise can be good for both the body and the brain. Exercise is good for one's mucels and bones. Regular physical activity, coupled with suffishent amount of sleep, helps adolescents grow up into adults with stronger bones.

(46)

(47)

Exercise is also good for the brain. It increased the amount of oxygen and blood that gets to the brain and even determines how the brain is struktered. Working out can produce chemicals in our bodies that might also help in the prevent of depression.

(49)

(50)

Research has proven that a workout after learning something helps to form and retain long-term memories.

Fill in each blank with a suitable word.

Almost one-third of all the food produced in the world goes to waste. This amount equals to more than a billion ton of food that is _____ away. It is equivalent to food that is enough to feed every undernourished person _____ earth.

(52)

Many environmentalists have cautioned that when we waste food, we also waste all the resources it takes to grow, transport and package the food. When food is wasted and ends up in the landfill to decompose, _____ produces methane — a greenhouse gas which is even more potent _____ to carbon dioxide. About six to eight percent of all greenhouse gas emissions could be reduced if we stop wasting food.

(53)

As the world's population gradually _____, our challenge is not to produce more food _____ to reduce food wastage. There are many ways to _____ the challenge. From delivering the leftovers _____ those in need, to freezing our food or being a smarter shopper, these are some small _____ to reduce our food waste.

(55)

(56)

(57)

(58)

(59)

The first solution is to _____ out a shopping list and buy only what we need. If we go to the supermarket without a plan, it can cause us to buy _____ than we require. By planning _____ of time and keeping to the list, we will not make redundant purchases.

(60)

(62)

Secondly, use your freezer well. Although there are many _____ of eating fresh food, their shelf life is short and many consumers end up discarding food that has turned bad. _____ to what many believe, frozen foods can be equally nutritious. If you cannot consume the _____ food quickly, you might want to consider buying frozen food instead. Frozen food stays edible for much longer and is a great way to avoid food wastage when it turns bad.

(20 marks)

The village school that I attended carried out a tradition every year. The School Board would award an academic medal to the graduating top student with consistent best grades in all six years.

My older sister, Ling, had won it a few years ago and I looked forward to receiving it too. I had been the top student for the past five years and I had also scored the highest in my sixth year. My parents could hardly make ends meet as the harvests from the farm was always limited. Hence, we could not afford the registration fees to participate in sports competitions. Therefore, even though Ling and I were very agile and athletic, we could never own a sports medal. This was our only chance.

A week before the graduation ceremony, Mr Li, the principal, called for me. He fidgeted apprehensively with the papers on his desk. "May," Mr Li eventually said, "The academic medal has always been free. However, the School Board has changed its policy this year. They will charge fifteen dollars to cover the cost of the medal." A loud cry escaped my throat and I started to sob. Mr Li added with a sigh, "If you are unable to pay for the cost of this, I will have no choice but to give it to the next highest scorer. Go home and discuss this with your family."

That day, I cried all the way home, thinking of how to ask my father for this unforeseen expense. I really wanted the medal. It represented six years of my hard work. I found him bent over the rice plants in the fields. I was so nervous because I knew our family could not afford to spend beyond our means. I clasped my hands behind my back so that my father would not see me shaking, "Father, I have a favour to ask of you. This year the academic medal is going to cost fifteen dollars. If I don't bring the money, it will be given to someone else." My last words came out in an eager rush.

My father looked out tiredly at the field. I waited, hoping he would say that I could have the money. He turned and asked me quietly, "What does the medal mean to you?"

I answered a little too quickly without realising the significance of my words, "It means that I have earned the medal by having the highest grades for six years."

It was too late. Father knew I understood that it was not about the money. He continued pulling the weeds before he spoke again, "Then if you pay for it, it means you have not earned the medal, does it? One's success is not measured by a medal. Tell your principal I will not pay the fifteen dollars."

In anger, I locked myself in the room that night. The Board's decision was infuriating. Why did they have to do this just when it was my turn? The issue was so unfair!

The next day, I dragged myself into the principal's office. I willed myself not to cry as I told him of my father's decision. The principal muttered something incomprehensible as he stared out of the window. I waited for him. "Why?" he finally asked.

"My father said it would not be an academic medal if I had to pay for it," I struggled to reply steadily. I could feel my heart pounding as I tried to maintain my dignity.

After a long while, Mr Li turned and looked me in the eye, "Go home, May. I will ensure that you receive your medal at no cost. I will also inform the Board."

I hardly believed what I heard. After school, I ran straight to the fields to look for my father. He did not ask me anything as I worked next to him. Finally, I stood up and said, "I told Mr Li what you said and he says I'm getting the medal after all."

Father simply smiled as he patted my head.
