Robots, Past and Present

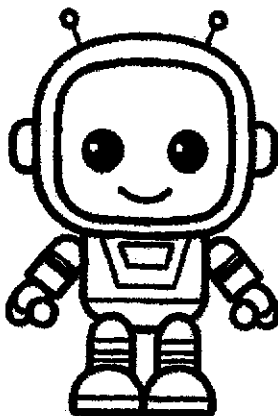

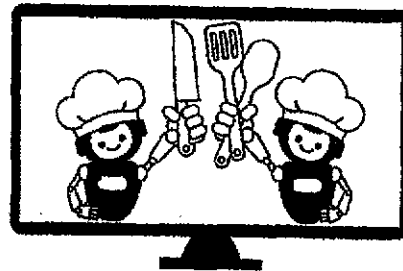

In their early developmental stages, robots were only used in industrial settings due to their sheer size and weight. They were bulky, heavy and stationary machines that performed repetitive tasks. While effective, they lacked adaptability which was essential to completing complex tasks.

However, technological advancements and the emergence of artificial intelligence have enabled robots to perform more functions and a variety of tasks in various environments. Today's robots are equipped with advanced sensors and other additional capabilities, allowing them to respond to changes in their environment in real time.

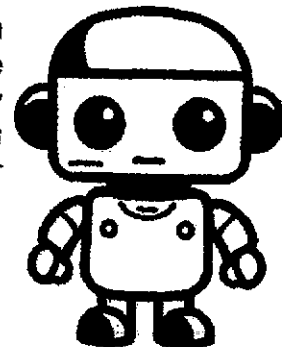

Robots and Immersive Dining

In Immersive Dining, we leverage on robots to enhance customer service and create memorable experiences. In addition to our original interactive dining concept, we have recently opened a space-themed outlet in Tech Park, specialising in weaving together the fields of robotics and dining.

The outlet provides a futuristic dining experience set against the backdrop of the blockbuster movie, Robochefs, where robots set out to delight people with their wonderful cooking.

Visit our new outlet and embark on a culinary adventure. Indulge in delicious novel dishes that our team of local chefs specially adapted from those featured in the movie to suit popular taste. Allow yourself to be immersed in the movie's plot and relish the chance to be served by our robot waiters! They can gracefully navigate crowded dining spaces, interact with diners and deliver food on time.

Special Promotions

Come to Immersive Dining with your family and friends and make the experience even more memorable! Groups of 3 to 5 diners get 10% off and larger groups get 15% off! Make a reservation before 1 December 2024 at www.immerse.sg to get 20% off for your first visit! Returning customers who make a reservation after 1 December 2024 will receive a 20% discount on their visit!

Customer Reviews

"I enjoyed the movie very much. However, watching the robot waiters take orders and serve food was even more remarkable! When I tasted the unusual dishes I had never heard of before, it felt like I was a character in the movie. I will always remember that meal!"

Charlene, 20-year-old student

"Not only were my children fascinated by the space-themed decorations, but my wife and I also found the experience amazing. The team took 3 months to curate so it is no wonder the unusual dishes tasted wonderful. What really left an impression on us were the robot waiters. We made quite a number of requests and they were able to promptly respond in an appropriate manner. It was an unforgettable family outing!"

Thomas, father of two

To ensure a pleasant dining experience, please take note of the following:

- ✓ Arrive five to ten minutes before your reservation time for a short presentation.
- ✓ Keep the floor free from clutter by storing your belongings in the lockers provided.
- ✓ Scan the QR code on your table to look at the menu and place your order online.
- ✓ Press the buzzer on your table to report a robot malfunction.

For each question from 21 to 28, four options are given. One of them is the answer. Make your choice (1, 2, 3 or 4). Shade the correct oval (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet.

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B is on the next page. You may now go on to Booklet B.

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B. (20 marks)

Growing up, my childhood was filled with responsibilities that have moulded me into who I am today. Since young, I had to step up as I was the older child in the family. Because of my parents' lack of proficiency in English, there were countless times when I had to assist them with official matters. Whether it was making phone calls on their behalf or explaining the content of letters sent to them, I became their translator.	5
As hawkers, my parents worked long hours at the market. While they were toiling at work, I had to shoulder a huge responsibility that pushed me to be mature beyond my years. I was tasked to take care of my younger brother, Timmy.
Every day after school, I was expected to act like a second mother to Timmy. I would prepare my own lunch, do my homework and help my parents out with the household chores. In the evening, I would then head out to pick Timmy up from the student care centre. My parents could only afford to put one of us there and it was crucial for Timmy to have a place to go after school. Once home, I would help him catch up with his schoolwork. I seldom went out with my friends after school and rarely spent time doing what I liked. Seeing my friends who led carefree lives made me envious of them thus I resented my role as an older sister. These responsibilities entrusted to me felt more and more overwhelming.	10 15
One afternoon, Timmy's teacher called my parents who then instructed me to find out what had happened. My heart sank at the end of the conversation with his teacher. He had gotten into a fight at school. I rushed to his school ahead of my parents since they were still busy at the stall. While I hoped that Timmy was not injured, my mind was consumed with the fear of him being expelled from school. Taking my role very seriously, I had always felt burdened by the thought of meeting my parents' expectation of being a good older sister. Would my parents think that I did not guide Timmy well? I felt as if I was forced into a tight corner, unable to breathe. I did not want to fail my parents.	20
Eventually, my parents turned up. The principal decided that Timmy would be suspended from school for a week and we had to make arrangements for his care during school hours. That evening, my parents were visibly upset. "Someone has to be home with him. I can't handle the stall on my own. And we can't afford to close our stall for a week," my father said to my mother. Seeing how troubled they were, I wanted to do something to make amends.	25 30
"I'll do it," I offered, unable to meet the gaze of my parents. Initially, they were hesitant to accept my suggestion. I would miss lessons and fall behind in my own work. After much deliberation, my parents made a difficult decision.

"Thank you," my mother said softly. "We can't do this without you. And this is not your fault." Hearing her words of gratitude warmed my heart. That was a turning point for me as I was reminded that I was valued. From then on, I was never bitter about a childhood full of responsibilities. Nor did I see my responsibilities as a burden. I realised they were opportunities for me to grow and support my family.	35
Looking back, I had my childhood experiences to thank for guiding me in my career. In my growing years, I had become more resilient and patient. With all that I had been through, as a counsellor, I am now able to better connect with teens and support those in need. Even if I could turn back the clock, I would not wish for a different childhood.	40

Many people enjoy catching sunsets. Not (29) _____ are they beautiful to look at but they also provide us with an insight (30) _____ the world of light and colours. Sunlight is made up of all the colours of light that travel as waves of energy. Different colours of light have different wavelengths.

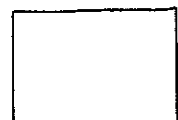

The stunning array of colours seen during sunset (31) _____ caused by a process called scattering which occurs when sunlight is scattered in all directions. Red light has long wavelengths (32) _____ blue light has short wavelengths. Blue light is scattered more than other colours of light because of (33) _____ shorter wavelengths.

During sunset, when the sun is lower in the sky, sunlight passes through more of Earth's atmosphere to reach us. This causes the blue light, (34) _____ its shorter wavelengths, to scatter more. As a result, this makes red and yellow more prominent in the sky, creating a breathtaking display of warm colours in the sky during sunset.

However, the colours we see can be affected (35) _____ factors like dust particles in air pollution and haze in the air. (36) _____ particles can scatter sunlight differently, sometimes causing the sky to appear greyish or white (37) _____ the day and affecting the colours visible during sunset.

Volcanic eruptions may impact the colours of sunsets as well. When a volcano erupts, it releases large amounts (38) _____ dust into the atmosphere. Dust particles scatter sunlight and thus enhance the colours of sunsets for many months even after the eruption, creating more vibrant sunsets around the world.

We all know the feeling. We get a strange tingly sensation on our skin when we feel a cool breeze or (51) _____ a spooky sound. That's goosebumps! They are small bumps that (52) _____ the skin of chicken after the feathers have been plucked. But have you ever (53) _____ what exactly makes your skin get all bumpy? Do goosebumps (54) _____ a purpose?

Under our skin, there are millions of tiny muscles. Each of them (55) _____ connected to each hair on the skin surface. (56) _____ we feel cold, these muscles tighten. The contraction causes our hair to (57) _____ up straight, resulting in goosebumps popping up on our skin.

Based on evolutionary theories, some scientists believe that goosebumps may have been (58) _____ down from apes. They were covered in thick fur and the tiny muscles under their skin were much stronger. This meant that when goosebumps caused their fur to stand on (59) _____, a warm layer of air would be trapped next to their skin. Their thick hair coat therefore served as insulation, (60) _____ them from the wind and cold.

In (61) _____ to keeping them warm, some animals use goosebumps as a survival tactic when (62) _____ with danger. To prepare them for a flight-or-fight reaction, a hormone called adrenaline is released, causing the contraction of skin muscles. (63) _____ instance, when a cat is feeling threatened by a dog, the elevated hair, together (64) _____ its arched back, makes it appear bigger. This is an attempt to make the dog back off.

Similarly, we may also experience an adrenaline rush when we stand on a podium to receive an award or while watching horror movies. This often (65) _____ in goosebumps, a physical reaction to intense emotions. While goosebumps might have served an important function once upon a time, evolution has rendered them unimportant. They are merely an outward reflection of surging hormones, big emotions or a literal chill.
